

Spring 2021 Book List – All Courses

All texts are required unless otherwise stated. Local sources for purchasing textbooks include UDC Follett Bookstore, campus bookstores at other law schools, and fellow law students. On-line sources include Amazon.com, LawBooksForLess.com, BarristerBooks.com, AbeBooks.com, Chegg.com, publishers' websites, etc. Always double-check that you are getting the correct edition required by the professor. The Higher Education Opportunity Act requires schools to provide the publisher's suggested retail price (PSRP) for new textbooks, but UDC Law does not require students to purchase new textbooks. Students may buy used books, borrow, rent, etc., as long as they are able to get the required edition of each text. Students should not purchase E-books unless expressly permitted by the professor. Even when E-books are allowed, hard copies are recommended.

NOTE: Regarding COMPREHENSIVE COMMERCIAL LAW 2020 STATUTORY SUPPLEMENT: “While these statutes can be pulled off the internet at no cost, I strongly suggest buying the book in hard copy. You’ll want to be able to move through several statutes while working a problem. A hard copy lends itself to that. If you decide not to buy the book, you may end up printing the statutes in any event. This may or may not equate to the cost of the book over time.”
